Feed Your Soul Too

“Writing is the best way to speak to your soul. Reading is another way”

The pen is mightier than the sword. This saying has been heard by generations of humans and yet it still stands true. Only a person, who writes, knows the true value of life and what it has to offer. He/she sees life through a varied perspective — as their own world, where there could be rules, umpteen restrictions or just pure blossoms and never-ending spring season.

A writer creates a world. A reader enters the world to live in it. The above sentence needs no proof. JK Rowling has proved it to us in her Harry Potter books where we entered Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry, in the boots of Harry Potter and had a wonderful stay. Adjectives wouldn't really be enough to justify the surreal experience of a reader when they read such books and get engrossed in a whole new world.

So does this mean you also should start writing, for others to read? NO!!!!

Write, but do it for yourself and your soul. Dive deep into the depths of your brain and search for stories which intrigue you. Then, sit down, pen up or rather MS-Word it. The happiness a writer gets when his story gets completed and lives up to their expectation cannot be described with words. It is a heavenly feeling.
