From the Editor

"It is never too late to be what you might have been. - George Eliot"

Every day is an opportunity to begin living our true selves. Strength lies in us, it's one's duty to hunt down that strength and build our actual image. We are not who others describe, or what our friends say or how we are criticised. Our potential is deep inside us and that true potential is waiting there to be discovered and explored. This issue of Digest might help you with some positive rays you need today.

STORY OF AN ACCIDENTAL INVENTION – POTATO CHIPS

A story that would make it onto countless food forums today, Potato chips were accidentally invented when an annoying customer kept asking a restaurant to make his French fries thinner and crispier. George Crum, the chef, sliced them wafer thin as a joke, but the guy loved them and the potato chip was born!
