Student Testimonial:

My last visit to SKCT was as a keynote speaker and it was quite an emotional moment for me. SKCT is my second home. I have spent four beautiful years of my life here. Back in 2009, when I chose Computer Science as my major, it was an instinctive decision and moreover, a leap of faith. It is this college and my beloved faculty members here, who gave me the reassurance that my career choice was the right one. They have helped me hone my technical skills, soft skills, life skills and above all, groom myself into a better professional. I am forever indebted to and would attribute half the credits for my current and future career achievements, to my alma-mater. I still receive immense support, guidance and blessings from my Professors and I strongly believe that is what takes me forward. In short, I would any day shout out to the whole world that I am a proud alumnus of this great institution.

For the current and future students at SKCT, I would like to say this - "SKCT is one of those great institutions where you can follow your passion, shape your career and give wings to it, no matter what field it is in. There is enough support here for you to achieve all your career goals. And finally, when you gather all the knowledge, spread your wings and fly towards success, make it a point to give back a part of that success to the institution which helped you get there. Keep contributing to its success and thereby, the countless number of students who would walk in after you."

He is currently based in Dublin, Republic of Ireland where he works as a Senior Data Analyst at Bank of Ireland. He is also an alumnus of University College Dublin, where he completed his master's in Data Science and has served his time with some of the major tech companies like SAP, Dassault Systèmes and TCS.

BOOK REVIEW

The Grapes of Wrath

John Steinbeck

The Pulitzer Prize-winning epic of the Great Depression, a book that galvanized—and sometimes outraged—millions of readers.

First published in 1939, Steinbeck's Pulitzer Prize-winning epic of the Great Depression chronicles the Dust Bowl migration of the 1930s and tells the story of one Oklahoma farm family, the Joads—driven from their homestead and forced to travel west to the promised land of California. Out of their trials and their repeated collisions against the hard realities of an America divided into Haves and Have-Nots evolves a drama that is intensely human yet majestic in its scale and moral vision, elemental yet plainspoken, tragic but ultimately stirring in its human dignity. A portrait of the conflict between the powerful and the powerless, of one man's fierce reaction to injustice, and of one woman's stoical strength, the novel captures the horrors of the Great Depression and probes into the very nature of equality and justice in America. At once a naturalistic epic, captivity narrative, road novel, and transcendental gospel, Steinbeck's powerful landmark novel is perhaps the most American of American Classics.
